Grambling Tigers To Face Slate Of Nine Games

Grambling, La. — (Special) — Grambling College Tigers, led by an array of veteran backs and bruising linemen together with some of the best high school talent in the country, will gear themselves for a rough nine game slate when they report August 30 for physical examinations prior to beginning September 2nd for the season opener September 21st.

In order to roll, the Tigers must find replacements for the eight lettermen who graduated in May. Among these were All-American Alving Richardson and Leon Larcie, also, Borth Blade, Joe Sells, Foster Wheeler and Gehrig Harris. Alvin Richardson, and Gehrig Harris will be fighting for positions in the National Professional Football League with the Philadelphia Eagles and the Chicago Bears, respectively.

The Tigers will face two new opponents on their 1957 schedule when they engage the co-champions for the Southwest Conference, Mississippi Vocational College.

Carolina College To Host Junior Net Tournament

Lynchburg, Va., July 15 — The National Junior Boys and Girls Tennis Tournament will be played July 31-August 3 at North Carolina College at Durham, according to announcement last week by Dr. R. Walter Johnson, Lynchburg, Va., public relations director for the Junior Development Program for Tennis.

The gate-keepers at Tiger Stadium will expect every football-loving fan to file through the turnstiles October 12, to watch the Tigers in the 'do or die' struggle against the Tennessee A & I University National Champions of 1956. The Tigers will then journey to Shreveport, the following week to take on the Wiley Wildcats, 1956 co-champions of the Southwest Conference. The Grambling Eleven will need lady luck with them to be able to show up the next five consecutive week-ends against Prairie View, Jackson, Bethune Cookman, Texas Southern and Mississippi Vocational.

Bethune Cookman College from Daytona Beach, Florida, will furnish the fireworks for the Alumni Homecoming November 9th at 2:00 P. M. Elaborate plans are being made for the 'grads' who will return to see the Tigers in action.

Former Jackson College Grid Star Gets Try With Canadian Team

Robert "Chick" Thornton, former star tackle with the Jackson State College Tigers, left Jackson via plane Wednesday for Hamilton, Ontario, Canada where he will work out with the Hamilton Tiger Cats "fledglings" in an effort to win a position with the Canadian League team. Thornton, an aggressive 215-pounder, was one of the mainstays in the Tigers' forward wall last season when Coach John A. Merritt's squad was ranked seventh among the Negro college eleven in the nation. He was selected to the All-Mid-Western Athletic Association squad.

Coach J. W. Trimble's hopefuls begin practice July 15. Candidates are free to report prior to that date. During his high school days Thornton played end and quarterback under Professor E. T. Hawkins at the old Scott County Training School. He will be the second Jackson State footballer to play north of the Border. Robert "Big Bob" Hill from Charleston played with the Rochester Rockets. Hill has an offer from the Los Angeles Rams for this season, but he has decided to go with the Minneapolis Blue Bombers.

tended credit facilities that would prime the industrial pump, and at the same time permit a reduction of imports and cut spending abroad. The Bank said the step was necessary because advance trade balances for three successive years had led to severe contraction of buying power and damaged Haiti's "balance of payments position."

But since the prospects of an excellent coffee crop in October are excellent, the Bank said it felt the country could ride out the crisis if government spending were held down and a "long neglected but realistic" monetary policy were adopted. It urged wide credit facilities to build up local investment.

Acting swiftly on the bank's advice, the military government published a decree requiring private banks to bring their fixed cover of cash reserves to the legal limit of 30 percent for deposits and 80 percent for local short-term obligations, with an offer of 2 percent rediscount by the Bank of Haiti.

Two private banks here immediately announced their cooperation. Ignacio Gusman, Director of the Colombian Haitian Bank expressed confidence that the move would have a good effect of Haiti's economy.

Most quarters here regard the bank decree as a step in the right direction. Meanwhile, the Junta pushed a program of road repairs in the capitol, in part as a relief measure, and in part to repair the damage caused by recent heavy rains.

Tourists arriving at Port-au-Prince airport are now welcomed by the music of a drumming folk band, and night clubs get around the cinderella curfew by remaining open until dawn when everyone can go home.

A general round-up of beggars in the capital has been started by the police and in many cases jobs are being found for them in relief work.

Clovis Charlot, the country's tourist director said last week that the number of tourists was rising again, and at least one luxury hotel in the mountain suburban resort full booking for the summer.

Although the recent heavy rains did some damage, they also helped the farmers and improved the prospects of a good harvest, especially in the Artibonite plain, which produces most of Haiti's rice and vegetables.

On the grimmer side, the Ministry of Interior has published a reminder that the country is still under a state seige and the military has the power to take all measures necessary to preserve order, including trial by military court, requisitioning of private property and suppression of publications and meetings regarded as likely to provoke any breach of peace.

An army team is still investigating details of violence that broke out during the May political strike.

time she reached City Hall she matched the crowds enthusiasm and threw kisses at the onlookers.

The motorcade, which included members of her family, City officials, and executives of the American States Lawn Tennis Association set forth under overcast skies. The sun burst through within a few minutes and shone over the procession until it reached City Hall.

Mayor Offers Praise

"As an humble New Yorker," Mayor Wagner told the tall tennis queen, he and the city were proud that she was a New York girl who learned the game here.

"If we had more wonderful people like you," he continued "the world would be a better place."

Miss Gibson, a white orchid corsage pinned to the shoulder of her red and blue checked silk dress, replied that "this is my finest hour."

"This victory was won through the help of all your encouragement and your well wishes," she told the crowd at City Hall.

"With God's Help," Miss Gibson said, "I hope to wear this crown that I have attained with honor and dignity."

Later, Richard C. Patterson, Commissioner of the Department of Commerce and Public Events, presided at a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"American Women have shown time and again that they have great powers of endurance," Mr. Patterson said. "Miss Gibson came up the hard way and now stands at the top of the class."

Determination Lauded

Rennville H. McMann, President of the Lawn Tennis Association, paid tribute to Miss Gibson's "ability and determination to overcome all obstacles and discouragements," and her "will to win."

She is also a "wonderful ambassador and saleswoman for America," Mr. McMann said, who has done more to spread the gospel and create goodwill than the great majority of American Ambassadors.

Mayor Wagner presented to Miss Gibson the medalion of the City of New York at the luncheon.

When she returned to her home at 135 West 143rd Street, Miss Gibson found that the neighbors, who had already welcomed her informally on Tuesday had strung streamers and signs reading "welcome home" across the street. Banners were set loose above the crowd whose spokesman presented a bouquet of red roses to her.

ficers to be returned to Lipscomb to face trial for murder as a result of the shooting.

According to reports the officer making the arrest found the loaded gun on the bus seat beside the youth.

Another Negro is being held as a material witness because he was sitting beside the youth on the bus, who reportedly admitted the shooting to him. He was identified as Pvt. Furman Jones, Co. "B," 53rd Signal Battalion, Fort Hood, Tex.

Two members of the Executive Council that ruled temporarily this spring are still imprisoned, Col. Pierre Armand, former Chief of Police, who led his forces against army units is still in asylum at the Spanish Embassy where the army investigation has interrogated him.

Meanwhile, two foreigners identified by the Army only as an American claiming to be a former U. S. Air Force Colonel and a Mexican citizen were said last week to be leading figures in a plot to land contraband arms at isolated points on the Haitian Coast.

The arms were intended to be used by factions that were involved in the May 25th disorders and have opposed the military Junta, the Army said.

Several former Haitian Army officers known to be members of the body guard of former Senator Louis Dejoie were questioned by police. One former colonel is reported to have been detained.

Miss Lena Horne Rates Raves

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15—Lena Horne's engagement at the Empire Room in New York's Waldorf Astoria is one of the most talked-about of the 1957 season.

Her repertoire was varied and exciting. RCA Victor has captured on records Lena at her best, singing for a receptive audience all the tunes she does so well.

From where she was born in Brooklyn to the Waldorf is not a great distance if measured in miles, but the long circuitous route began when Lena was still a little girl. Her rise to success in the entertainment world is a well known story, and now, at the peak of her career, the talented thrush's many fans can hear her as often as they wish via recordings.

The RCA Victor album, titled "Lena Horne at the Waldorf Astoria," features fifteen top tunes including Cole Porter medley and old favorites such as "Mood Indigo," "I'm Beginning To See The Light," "Honey Suckle Rose," and "I Love to Love." The orchestra is under the baton of Lennie Hayton.

followed a dedication ceremony Sunday in which a white minister was supposed to have taken part.

Rev. Harry E. King, 46-year-old white minister from White Plains, Va., was arrested Sunday shortly after dedication services got underway by a Franklin County Constable on charges of obstructing traffic.

He was one of the leaders of a parade of 100 or more Negroes which blocked traffic for three miles to the church. Constable Lloyd Gupton arrested Rev. King in the yard of the new church building.

King was supposed to have been one of the participants on the dedication program, but his arrest prevented him from taking part. None of the others who took part in the parade were arrested.

King pleaded guilty before a magistrate and was fined $21.75. Franklin County Sheriff C. Willis Perry said his office would investigate the cross burning.

HEALTH HINTS

By Dr. Harley D. Scanlan, President National Chiropractic Association

Achieving Normal Heart Function

The terrible toll shown by statistics testifies to the reasons for increased activity to combat the many heart conditions. This vital, most indispensable organ of the body receives less care and more abuse than any other, with the possible exception of the stomach. When the heart stops functioning, the entire body does likewise, and life ceases.

Some heart disorders cannot be corrected; others respond favorably to treatment. Conscious care of the heart, and the realization of its importance, should be a basic health measure for everybody. Prevention is the best "cure" for heart trouble. The normal heart is the size of a closed fist. There are four compartments or chambers, and the heart's function is the same as a pump: It forces the blood into the arteries.

Like every other part of the human body, it is controlled by the nervous system. The nerve impulses to the heart determine whether its beat is normal or abnormal. It is here that chiropractic care works to normalize the function of the heart, for chiropractic is a science basing its premise on normal nerve function which affects every organ and tissue of the body. Treatments restore the nerve stimuli which the heart must have to make it function properly. When this nerve energy is unobstructed, nature and time repair the heart damage. Every type of heart symptom, even the "nervous heart," which can be detected by its sudden "racing" and palpitations, calls for a physical checkup. Chiropractic care can usually prevent the development of heart disorders, since it stimulates normal activity and assures greater strength and endurance. To "get along" with your heart, consult your chiropractor and be assured of better health.

menting him upon several phases used in the article. So impressed was the editor of The Upper Room that he has invited Principal Finch to do some writing for this worldwide publication.

Just recently Mr. Purser Hewitt, of the Clarion Ledger, referred to Principal Finch as "the educator of notable achievements in our state."

Presently he is working on a number of poems to be released in book form by December. He is doing special study in this direction under Dr. Kinnell, head of the poetry division, University of Chicago.

Miss Martha Shull, president of the National Education Association expressed a deep appreciation for the Carver article and stated she was using it in her English classes at Portland, Oregon.
